

Life Group Covenant

A covenant is a promise made in the presence of God. This covenant establishes the promise of each group member to abide by the conduct guidelines set forth below.

As a member of this group, I accept and will act according to the following group principles:

- Respect all opinions. Every person has an opinion and a right to that opinion, and I will not force my own opinion on others.
- Attendance. The group is dependent upon each member's presence. I will make every effort to be at each meeting.
- Preparedness. Our growth and discussions are dependent upon each member completing the assignments thoroughly and on time. I will commit to owning and completing the assignments in the proper timeframe.
- Confidentiality. The group is a safe space. What is said in the group stays in the group, including prayer concerns. I will commit to not sharing information that is shared in the group unless expressly told otherwise.
- Participation. The group is dependent upon participation. I will commit to offering my opinion and to discuss group matters as appropriate.
- Prayer. Praying for each other regularly creates a tight community of care and concern for one another. I will commit to praying for myself and each group member throughout the course of the group's meeting dates.
- Service. I will commit to participating in the various service projects that the small group does to the extent that I am physically able to do so.